Letters to Editor

Editor The Star: Heartiest congratulations and best wishes in your fight against the federal octopus.

I've written to my senators suggesting that they take notice of your unwillingness to roll over and play dead and enjoy the benefits of a bureaucrat's infinite wisdom. At your service —

Editor The Star: I just read the enclosed editorial (New York World-Telegram, Jan. 14) about your local campaign against the proposed new post office for Hope, which you claim is unnecessary and the U. S. government can save $500,000 by not building it.

I am in full agreement with your thinking and wish many more of our reputable citizens would voice similar opinions.

Someone's "pork barrel" in your area must need filling, since this is an election year. Good luck, and keep up the good work!

I would appreciate a few more copies of your newspaper. I'll bet it has some very interesting reading.

Excuse this lousy handwriting of mine. I'm a lousy typist, and worse on penmanship, but a pretty good sound man.

Editor The Star: I question the depth of President Johnson's good will toward man. I should like to see him dig enough deeper so that he limited his coming budget to 70 billion dollars, which is only a fraction of what our federal debt is anyway, so that it can all be counted as borrowed.

Without having any figures before me, this is roughly how it can be done:

Cut the Army's 50 billions deeply. That is not for defense; it is for prestige — the prestige of the president and his officers and some of those closest to them who can live and travel with privilege. Those who try to give service abroad are paying 10 times over for all that prestige, and those who try to sell their wares abroad naturally are continually faced with closed doors because they are Americans.

I would cut out the space folder altogether.

The big farmers who have been managing — some of them — to make a crooked dollar out of the taxpayer, the same as big city operators — some of them — could be told they would get nothing special because they are farmers. But they could have their property taxes forgiven then because we have to eat still, to survive.

Then I would get the oil companies, some of which have been so altruistic with some of their profits, voluntarily to forego their freedom from taxation — so that we don't have to have weeks of expensive fighting in congress over it.

And if the men of this country still did not voluntarily agree to stay down under 70 billion dollars in this coming federal budget, then the women can start showing the men that they have always built on women, and now we will no longer support the stronger sex. How we arrange that need not at this point be advertised.

Foreman Has Water, Well Completed

FOREMAN, Ark. (AP)—Residents of this Southwest Arkansas town were using imported water today until they could get their new temporary city well working.

The new well, drilled Tuesday, was expected to begin pumping late today. Meanwhile, there was about 30 pounds of pressure in city lines from water hauled in by truck from Ashdown, 16 miles east.

"We hauled all night and built up a little reserve in our overhead tank," said Mayor T. McGuyre. "I think we'll have enough until we get the new well going."

The six-inch well was as deep, but only half as wide as the one that failed with sand Monday disrupting normal water service to the city of 1,200 persons.

Engineers believed an underground cave-in caused the malfunction.

One official said that "it looks like our troubles are over."

A forest fire threatened the town briefly Tuesday, but a Forestry Commission fire plow contained it. The fire, burned over several acres north of Foreman and threatened a number of houses outside the city limits.

The city's fire trucks, without water, were kept within the city limits on orders from Mayor James T. McGuyre.

Tank trucks hauled some 2,000 gallons of water from Ashdown, 16 miles east, to put in the city reservoir and give Foreman residents water for cooking and drinking.

Sand had to be shoveled out of the reservoir before the water could be put in it. Foreman uses about 150,000 gallons of water daily.

River Group Promises to Protest More

By JOHN R. STARR
WALNUT RIDGE, Ark. (AP)—The Upper Eleven Point River Association promised today to keep fighting the proposed Water Valley Dam until the project is "beaten and forgotten."

Members of the association presented anti-dam statements at the second day of an Army Engineer hearing on the dam project.

The association, which has fought the dam for several years, too issue today with an Engineers' announcement Tuesday that the Southwest Power Administration now believes that power facilities can be economically justified in a dam which will contain a 16,300 acre reservoir.

John Pickett of near Dalton president of the association, asked Col. Charles D. Maynard, Little Rock district engineer, why the SPA letter dated Jan. 7 was not made public until the hearing opened Tuesday.

Maynard said this was the choice of Douglas Wright, SPA administrator, who wrote the letter.

The hearing was expected to end today.

Group Talks Over Plants for Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Members of an Arkansas group who met Tuesday with James E. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said they talked about bringing more electronics research and manufacturing contracts to Arkansas.

The Arkansasans said they tried to convince Webb and other NASA officials that Arkansas is ready to conduct research and development and manufacture parts for the space program.

The University of Arkansas Graduate Institute of Technology in Little Rock would provide the scientists needed. It has a new program of granting doctorate degrees.

An important aspect of the meeting was the success of the Electronics of Little Rock has had in manufacturing electronic parts. NASA officials were told that the parts could also be made elsewhere in Arkansas.

The group at the meeting Tuesday made plans for a non-profit organization of businessmen to work to bring more contracts to Arkansas.

U.S. May Have Seized Supremacy in Rockets

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—A Saturn 1 super rocket propelled the world's heaviest satellite into orbit today and presumably vaulted the United States over Russia in the race for space rocket supremacy.

The mighty rocket, 164 feet tall and weighing 562 tons, flooded its launching pad with a rush of flame and sent a thunderous shock wave rolling across Cape Kennedy as it blasted off at 11:25 a.m., Eastern Standard Time, on its first full-scale test flight.

Slightly more than 10 minutes later, the Saturn 1—its second stage, live for the first time— injected into orbit a mammoth 84-foot-long satellite weighing 37,700 pounds, nearly three times heavier than the Soviet heavyweight champions of space.

The satellite is little more than a mass of metal and sand with a radio tracking beacon. But its presence in the sky demonstrates U.S. capability for the future and the nation's determination to grasp the space rocket power lead.

No scientific value was attached to the huge satellite be-

Fire Claims Trial Testimony Ends

HELENA, Ark. (AP)—Farmers Fertilizer Co. of Patterson completed its testimony Tuesday in trial of counter suits over payments for a building destroyed by fire.

Farmers is seeking $60,000 from A. C. Carlisle Construction of Denver, Colo., and its bonding agency, Travelers Indemnity Co. contending faulty construction caused the fire. It claims the building was incomplete at the time of the fire.

Carlisle's counter suit claims the building was complete and seeks $3,000, as the remainder of a $60,000 bill for its construction. The trial continued today.

Final Rites Today for Steve Cupp

Steve Cupp, aged 81, longtime Hempstead County resident, died Tuesday in a local hospital. He was a member of the Church of Christ.

Survivors include two sisters, Mrs. Arch Turner and Miss Eric Cupp, both of Spring Hill; a brother, S. P. Cupp of Atlanta, Texas.

Services will be held at 4 p.m. Wednesday at Herndon-Cornelius Funeral Home Chapel by Milton Peebles. Burial will be in Evening Shade.

Active pallbearers: Brooks Collins, Marion Morris, Gilbert Brown, Giles Foster, Fred Hunt and Aubrey Collier.

2nd Major Fire at Monticello

MONTICELLO, Ark. (AP)—A second major fire in 50 days struck Monticello Tuesday night, destroying four businesses and damaging two.

Chamber of Commerce manager Virgil McCloy said damage estimates ranged between $250,000 and $300,000.

The Monticello Drug Store, the Jacqueline Shop, Walloch Music Co. and the Advance Printing Co., which publishes a weekly newspaper were destroyed.

A Ben Franklin store and a Western Auto store sustained smoke and water damage.

On Dec. 12, a fire swept through three businesses on Monticello's court square, causing about $200,000 damage. That fire was believed the worst at Monticello in 15 years.

Chiang Simply Outfoxed Red China Leader

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—As France and Communist China struggled with the touchy two-Chinas issue, Nationalist China waited quietly on the sidelines today. The feeling in Taipei was that President Chiang Kai-shek had outfoxed Mao Tze-tung.

Chiang's officials were elated at the dispute between Paris and Peking only a day after French President Charles de Gaulle's recognition of Communist China.

Red China's Foreign Ministry called on France Tuesday to break off relations with the Nationalists. A French spokesman replied Paris would continue to recognize the Taipei government.

The French spokesman also denied the Paris-Peking agreement to exchange ambassadors included a French pledge to sever diplomatic ties with the Nationalists.

Nationalist officials saw the dispute as evidence of a miscalculation by Mao, Red China's Communist party chief. They said Mao apparently expected Chiang to cut off relations with France in angry reaction to De Gaulle's recognition of Peking Monday.

Had the Nationalists broken with France, they would have solved Mao's problem. The Red leader, like Chiang, opposes the idea of two Chinas. Each regards his regime as the sole voice and legal representative of the Chinese people.

The Red Chinese failed to make clear what they would do if France continued its relations with Taipei. In Paris, a French spokesman said his government is seeking clarification of Peking's position.

Nationalist officials say the next move is up to Paris. They think Peking probably will not.

Final Rites for E. R. Bonds Thurs.

Edward Richard Bonds, aged 52, formerly of Hempstead, died Tuesday at his home in Texarkana. He was found dead in bed.

Survivors include a sister, Mrs. Louise Merchant of Fort Scott, Kansas.

Services will be at 2:30 p.m. Thursday Oakcrest Chapel. Burial by Oakcrest will be at Marlbrook Cemetery, near Blevins.

Cold Spreads Across Much of Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cold air and strong winds spread into the Northeast today in the wake of a storm which dumped up to seven inches of snow in parts of New England.

Temperatures were moderating across the chilled Midwest after a brief cold spell in which readings dropped below zero four days in northern areas.

The snow storm which hit the upper Ohio Valley and New England Tuesday tapered off during the night and early morning as it drifted out to sea. Snow measured seven inches in Augusta, Maine, and more than four inches fell in Boston and Portland, Maine. Snow also fell in parts of Pennsylvania.

Strong winds were reported in some eastern areas, with gusts up to 44 miles an hour in Nantucket, Mass. Temperatures were a little below and near zero in some sections of the Northeast, with -2 in Lebanon, N.H. The teens were reported in many parts of the East.

The mercury also dropped a few degrees below zero in parts of Idaho and Nevada and some of the cold air which spread into the East dipped into the Southwest, with freezing marks in many areas.

Rain and stiff winds swept areas in the north Pacific Coast, with more than one-half inch of rain in a six-hour period along parts of the Oregon and Washington coastlines.

County Farm Agent

By CALVIN J. CALDWELL

Soil Samples
Monday of this week farmers of the county brought in a record number of soil samples. A total of forty-five samples representing 1,24 acres was forwarded to the soil testing laboratory at the University of Arkansas. Soil testing is the best method of determining fertilizer needs that is known.

Cucumber Production
Farmers in the Hope area grew 308 acres of cucumbers in 1963. Brown-Miller Pickling Company of Texarkana paid out approximately $30,000 for the cucumers in this area last year. This does not include money spent for labor at the grading station and for hauling. A meeting to discuss this year's production and contracts will be held in the City Hall auditorium beginning at 10:00 a.m., February 22. Prices this year are $6.00 for No. 1, $2.75 for No. 2 and $1.00 per hundred weight for No. 3. The company needs more acreage in this county.

Farm Bureau Meetings
An area leaders meeting for Farm Bureau members will be held in Texarkana at the Grimm Hotel, Thursday, January 30. Two or three cars will take leaders from this county to the meeting.

The membership kick-off meeting for Farm Bureau members in Hempstead County will be held at the Barlow Hotel on Monday night, February 3 at 7:00 p.m. The membership quota this year is 653. Four hundred thirteen members have already joined for the new year.

the radar screen.

"An inspection of the crash site showed that the intruder was a military jet plane of the T39 type belonging to the U.S. Air Force," the Soviet note said. "Three corpses of servicemen were found."

The official Soviet news agency, Tass, said the note asserted: "The Soviet government cannot regard this intrusion as anything but a gross provocation by the American military authorities, aimed at aggravating the situation in central Europe."

The note said the American plane crossed into East Germany near Dierdorf, 15 miles northwest of the town of Eisenach, and had penetrated 55 miles into East Germany at an altitude of about 26,000 feet when the Soviet fighter went up to intercept it.

The T39 trainer, with a lieutenant colonel and two captains aboard, was tracked by Air Force radars for 11 minutes Tuesday heading into East Germany at about 450-500 miles an hour.

Shortly after the plane disappeared from the screens, the radar operators saw "two other blips." It could not be determined whether these were Communist fighters or aircraft shells.

The Air Force refused to confirm the report that the plane had been shot down.

An Air Force spokesman said the plane was not authorized to cross the Iron Curtain and could not be reached by radio. He said the Air Force didn't consider there was "the slightest possibility" that the three officers were defecting.

The Air Force said the officers aboard the plane were Lt. Col. Gerald K. Hannaford, 41; Capt. John F. Lorraine Jr., 34; and Capt. Donald G. Millard, 33.

Hannaford has been in the Air Force for 24 years and flew 83 missions in the China-Burma-India theater in World War II and 50 missions during the Korean War. He had planned to retire next year.

Lorraine flew about 80 missions in Korea and was assigned to Germany about 18 months ago. He joined the Air Force in 1948.

Millard had been in the Air Force since 1951.

send an ambassador to Paris until France breaks relations with Taipei. The Paris-Peking agreement calls for the exchange of ambassadors within three months.

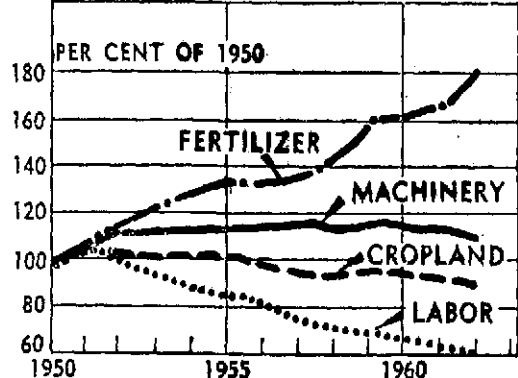

Although the Chinese Nationalist embassy in Paris has been instructed to carry on as usual, the government ordered the withdrawal of funds from French banks to prevent the money being turned over to the Communists later.

The South Viet Nam government issued a white paper rebuking France and banning the import of French goods. It also hinted South Viet Nam may break relations with France.

France is South Viet Nam's second largest supplier after the United States. French business with Saigon runs to about $35 million annually.

The Saigon military government has vigorously opposed De Gaulle's proposal to end the guerrilla war through reunification and neutralization of Viet Nam.

MORE FERTILIZER, LESS LABOR USED DURING 1963

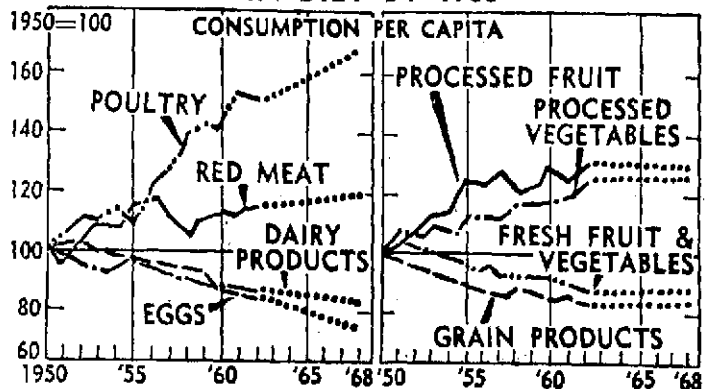

Greater yields per acre through increased use of fertilizer have helped reduce the amount of labor used in farming by more than 40 per cent since 1950. In other words, more fertilizer used results in a decrease in land and labor.

MACHINERY, WAGES, LAND COST MORE IN 1963

Fertilizer costs have remained fairly constant between 1950 and 1963, but land costs have skyrocketed to about 91 per cent more than that paid in 1950. Wage rates rose about 61 per cent in the same 13-year period, machinery about 50 per cent.

MORE POULTRY, LESS DAIRY IN DIET BY 1968

Rising incomes and trends in consumer preference are expected to alter the national diet substantially in the next four years. The demand for red meat is likely to continue at a slightly more rapid pace, but poultry consumption should show a marked increase. Consumption of dairy products is declining rapidly. A slow but steady increase in processed foods is projected.

Oklahoma Taps Harding Coach

SEARCY, Ark. (AP) — Oklahoma University head football coach Homer Jones has tapped Harding College Coach Carl Allison as an assistant, it was learned Tuesday.

Allison declined comment. An announcement was expected from either Harding or Oklahoma in the next few days.

Allison was an outstanding end and cornerback during Oklahoma University's heyday under Coach Bud Wilkinson in the early 1950s. His best record at Harding came in 1962, when the Bisons went 6-3. He has an overall coaching record of 13-27-3. He was an Oklahoma high school coach until Harding, a Church of Christ school, hired him in 1959.

Harding is scheduled to start spring practice Saturday. The Sooners will start workouts March 10.

Allison initiated Harding's football program and had the Bisons in the first division of the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference in 1961.

Lack of Boats Created This Situation

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Red Chinese just had enough boats to get enough men across 100 miles of water in 1950 the problem being created now by French President Charles de Gaulle would be different or it wouldn't exist.

De Gaulle is about to recognize the Chinese Communists as lawful rulers of mainland China, over American protests. This country has refused them this recognition and so far has kept them out of the United Nations.

The Frenchman is starting—both in Asia and the United Nations—a whole new series of problems for the United States whose troubles with China form one of the greatest, and most emotional, switch-boards in American history.

At the time the United Nations was created in 1945 it was decided—by five big powers—that there were five big powers and they should have the only permanent seats in the Security Council of the United Nations.

The five were the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France, and Nationalist China which was run at the time by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

But after World War II ended the Chinese Communists, who had been doing the same thing on and off since 1927, fought Chiang for control of China. Between 1945 and 1949 this country gave Chiang over $2 billion in military and economic help and then figured he was a lost cause.

On Aug. 5, 1949, the American State Department issued a "white paper," explaining why it was withdrawing help. It said Chiang's government was too corrupt and inept to hold the support of the Chinese masses.

On Dec. 8, 1949, Chiang and what was left of his forces fled the mainland to Formosa across 100 miles of open water and there set up shop as boss of about eight million Formosans who had long been held subject by the Japanese but were considered, by the Chinese at least, as part of China.

This country was so fed up with Chiang that on Jan. 5, 1950, President Truman publicly washed his hands of the generalissimo, telling a news conference this country would not give him military aid or help defend him from a Red Chinese attack.

This was American policy until June 24, 1950, when the North Koreans attacked South Korea.

But in those six months the Red Chinese did not try to take Formosa. When the Korean War began Truman not only decided to use American forces in Korea but gave Formosa air and naval protection. Chiang has been an American ally ever since.

Then something else happened. The anger in this country at the Red Chinese for going into Korea and killing American troops was compounded perhaps by embarrassment that the Red Chinese were even in a position to do it.

The search for someone to blame began. Republicans blamed the Truman policy in China. A new era began: Sen. Joseph McCarthy's hunt for traitors in the State Department. The whole problem of China became an emotional nightmare.

Chiang was almost glorified. As the McCarthy era ended in 1954 President Eisenhower pledged this country to defend Formosa from attack. The pledge still stands.

The American position has been that Chiang's Nationalist government on Formosa is the legitimate government of mainland China although the Reds have bossed the mainland since 1950 and Chiang couldn't possibly return without American help.

The result is a kind of mythology since there is no sign that the Reds will be overthrown or that Chiang can ever go back. But Chiang still represents China in the Security Council because this country has kept Red China out.

Yet what Chiang is actually boss of on Formosa is an island of 13,885 square miles and about 11 million people. The Red Chinese control on the mainland 3.9 million square miles and about 700 million people.

If size were the criterion other countries would have a greater claim on the permanent Security Council seat than Chiang. For instance, Japan, Mexico, Peru, the Philippines, Thailand, and, of course, India which, with about 375 million to 400 million people is next to Red China in population.

Meanwhile, the Red Chinese have developed hatred for the Soviet Union, too, and insist that as the price for accepting a seat in the United Nations it wants, as boss of China Chiang's seat on the Security Council.

The question of letting Red

Court Shows Happen Upon Same Theme

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Two television courtroom dramas, CBS' "The Defenders" and ABC's "Arrest and Trial," happened upon the same theme for their respective Saturday and Sunday night shows.

The crime in both shows was murder. The problem was not so much to solve the case but to get the guilty man to confess.

"The Defenders," in its earnest made-in-New-York style, took up the case of a derelict whose failure as a poet had led him to drug addiction and drink. He was accused of killing a heroin pusher in a scuffle outside a beatnik night club.

The homicide actually was committed by the club owner in an accident when he came to the aid of the eccentric old ruin. Before he decided to confess, there was much philosophic talk of life, death, failure and conscience, a specialty of the series.

"Arrest and Trial" tackled the situation in a more forthright Hollywood style. The victim was a call girl of the black-mail stripe. The murderer was a former police hero thrown off the force in disgrace and making a living as a private eye.

In the end, after some fight scenes and an extra killing thrown in for good measure, he too was heading out to confess his crime.

Also on the bright side of the weekend ledger was the second edition of NBC's "That Was the Week That Was," which recovered some of the bite, bounce and impudence of its first experimental show last fall.

On the debit side, was NBC's "Seven Little Boys" on Friday night's Bob Hope Theatre. It came off like one of those elderly 1930 musical movies.

China into the United Nations will come up this year and that alone will give the international organization a busy season.

De Gaulle, by recognizing the Chinese Communists, has undercut this country's attempts to isolate the Reds, may pave the way for their getting into the United Nations, and to some extent may affect the will of the Southeast Asian nations, backed by the United States, to stiff-arm the Chinese Communists.

Yet, from a practical standpoint, it would have been impossible for the American-Red Chinese deadlock to go on undisturbed indefinitely.

The American position has been that Chiang's Nationalist government on Formosa is the legitimate government of mainland China although the Reds have bossed the mainland since 1950 and Chiang couldn't possibly return without American help.

The result is a kind of mythology since there is no sign that the Reds will be overthrown or that Chiang can ever go back. But Chiang still represents China in the Security Council because this country has kept Red China out.

Yet what Chiang is actually boss of on Formosa is an island of 13,885 square miles and about 11 million people. The Red Chinese control on the mainland 3.9 million square miles and about 700 million people.

If size were the criterion other countries would have a greater claim on the permanent Security Council seat than Chiang. For instance, Japan, Mexico, Peru, the Philippines, Thailand, and, of course, India which, with about 375 million to 400 million people is next to Red China in population.

Thinks More Men to Leave Viet Nam

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said today "there has been a very noticeable improvement" in the war against Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam and "I am encouraged by the progress of the last two weeks."

McNamara said this at a news conference a day after he testified to the House Armed Services Committee that the Communist Viet Cong had made considerable progress since a Vietnamese military junta overthrew the Diem regime in early November.

He attributed the setbacks to the problems of the military group in organizing the new government — a job which he said took their attention away from military operations alone.

McNamara acknowledged, however, that the situation in the delta region south of Saigon remains grave.

In advance of the session with newsmen it was learned that McNamara, despite some serious reverses to the government forces, still expects more U.S. military men to be withdrawn from Viet Nam.

This was disclosed today by sources close to McNamara after the defense chief acknowledged to a House committee that the Red Viet Cong had made considerable progress since a Vietnamese military junta overthrew the Diem regime in early November.

McNamara's description of the military situation as "grey" cast his evaluation of the Vietnamese war in a pessimistic light.

Informants said the defense secretary's congressional testimony recognized that there have been setbacks but did not reflect any deepening gloom.

Recent field reports to the Pentagon have told of a slowdown in Viet Cong operations after a high point of terrorism and attacks during the weeks after the early November coup.

Rightly or wrongly, the informants said, U.S. military men in Viet Nam continue to tell McNamara that the Viet Cong are not capable of maintaining a high level of operations.

Sources noted that the McNamara statement Monday mentioned a number of signs which are considered hopeful.

The defense secretary contended the new Vietnamese government "has considerably more popular support than its predecessor and is beginning to take action to intensify military operations and to improve civil administration."

Pentagon officials said that McNamara still believes, as he has for some time, that the course of the war under the new Vietnamese leadership will not become clear for several months.

Meanwhile, they said, McNamara has not discarded the stated objective of completing the major part of the U.S. military task in Viet Nam by the end of 1965.

Sunday, February 2

Wesleyan Service Guilds in the Hope District will meet at the Prescott Methodist Church Sunday, February 2 at 2 p.m. All members of the two Guilds in the local Methodist Church are asked to meet at the church for departure in a body at 1:15 p.m. Sunday.

Monday, February 3

Circle 6, WSCS, of the First Methodist Church will meet Monday, February 3 at 2 p.m. in the home of Mrs. C. D. Lester with Mrs. R. M. Mouser as co-hostess.

Jeanette Hunker Circle Meets

Last Monday afternoon Mrs. A. A. Halbert was hostess to the Jeanette Hunker Circle of W.M.U. of the First Baptist Church at her home on South Walker. Mrs. Halbert used yellow Chrysanthemums and arrangements of permanent flowers and fruit to decorate the living and dining rooms.

After the business meeting conducted by the Circle Chairman Mrs. J. V. Moore, Jr. the program was turned over to Mrs. J. S. Gibson who directed the study on Christian citizenship. All members present took part by answering questions asked by Mrs. Gibson. Some of the responsibilities of citizens in our land which were brought out by the ladies were: voting, obeying laws, paying taxes, jury duty, serving as witnesses in trials, defending the country against internal and external enemies, teaching children respect for law and government, running for office if qualified and many others.

Mrs. Halbert served cake, candy and coffee to mesdames, Connie Ward, Pod Rogers, W. B. Mason, J. S. Atchinson, C. P. Wiggins, Moore and Gibson.

Columbus HD Club

The Columbus Home Demonstration Club met on Monday, January 27 in the home of Mrs. Carl Hicks. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Hicks. For the Eye Opener Mrs. Ernest Delaney told "How to Make a Scouring Pad Out of Nylon Net."

After she had given a devotion from Matthew, Mrs. Hicks distributed instruction sheets to her new officers. "The Key to Home Demonstration Clubs" was the lesson Mrs. Earl Thompson gave, and in it six phases of a good members were cited as 1) Friendship and Fellowship, 2) Citizenship, 3) Leadership, 4) Service, 5) Broadening Our Vision, and 6) Knowledge.

Mrs. Hugh Gilbert read a letter of thanks from the supervisors of a Crippled Children's Hospital in Little Rock for a box of pajamas the local club sent in December. The group made plans to make quilts for the children in the near future.

For refreshments the hostess served pound cake with heavenly hash and coffee or cocoa to the members. Everyone is urged to attend the February meeting with Mrs. Hugh Gilbert, as Mrs. Bettie Duncan will show a film to begin a series of programs on "Rural Civil Defense."

Common Mkt. Faces Deficit in Payments

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—If misery loves company, the United States may take some comfort in the prospect that the high-flying European Common Market this year faces the threat of a deficit in international payments for the first time since its formation in 1958.

The U.S. annual deficit is older, and is still unsolved, if down from the peak of a few years back.

The European Common Market's basic problem also is one that the United States is accustomed to—the disturbances that growing prosperity can make in attempts to balance an economy, despite the welcomed advantages of having good times.

Rising consumer demand in Europe, fed by a striking increase in prosperity, has increased both the local prices and the volume of imports. Europe is worried about inflation and about running behind in its financial dealings with others.

The United States managed a pleasant $4.8-billion surplus of commercial exports over imports last year. The Common Market, on the other hand, had a $2.8-billion surplus of imports over exports. And about three-fifths of the U.S. $4.8-billion trade surplus can be traced to the big excess of its exports to Western Europe over imports from the Common Market and other European nations.

On the debit side, about half of the $1.2-billion rise in U.S. exports in 1963 to a total of $21.7 billion came from foreign orders financed by U.S. government aid programs, so its balance of payments deficit was not whittled much. For the year this deficit, including all dollars going abroad and returning in addition to commercial exports and imports, is estimated at $2.6 billion or more.

The European Common Market, on the other hand, was able to erase its deficit in trade by the aid of money earned in other activities and receipts, from shipping to America private investment from Europe, and to dollars spent on U.S. military establishments there.

This year, however, some of the officers of the European Economic Community—the Common Market—are predicting a total payments deficit of as much as a billion dollars. They note that imports of the six nations rose 10.5 per cent last year, and exports only 4.5 per cent. The members are France, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg.

In most of the six, consumer demand has been growing faster than production. That is why imports have been rising, and a deficit is a threat.

More Military Bases to Close

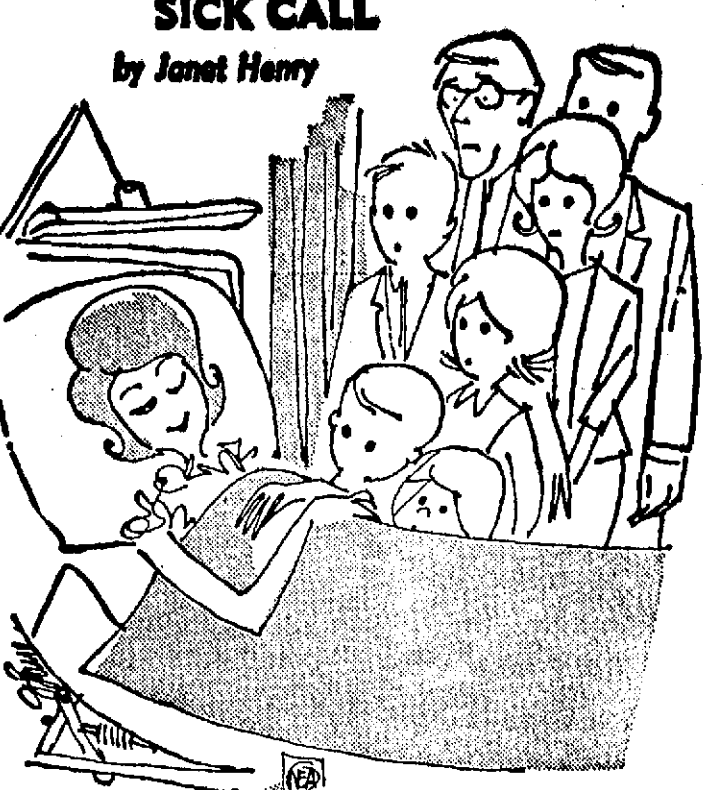

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara reported today that a new round of military base closings is expected before the end of March. But he said it will be of less magnitude and involve smaller installations than the closing announced last month.

He told a news conference that "every base we have is in jeopardy in the sense that we don't plan to retain a single one" not required for military purposes. McNamara said he will continue to review the need for every installation.

The list of closings he expects to announce by the end of March will not involve Navy yards, McNamara said.

SICK CALL

by Janet Henry

Deliver me, please, from a second rate ill;
A "touch of the flu" or a "bit of a chill,"
The still-on-my-feet kind of physical woe;
To bear in a household that's all status-quo.
While nausea threatens and sniffles beset,
The phone is still ringing, the baby still wet,
The children still hungry and loud and perverse.
(Discipline's painful, but listening is worse).
If I cannot function in health's fullest bloom,
Hustle me off to a hospital room!

Canal Vital to Existence of Panama

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

PANAMA (AP)—To a schoolchild in the United States, Balboa is the man who discovered the Pacific Ocean. In Panama, Balboa means a U.S. naval station and town, the hub of the present crisis between the United States and Panama.

In the wake of bloody rioting, Panama President Roberto Chirari's official stance is that the United States must agree to negotiate a new Canal Zone treaty before Panama will restore diplomatic relations with Washington. Panama wants the new treaty to provide for an eventual takeover by Panama of the 50-mile-long, 10-mile-wide zone and its canal.

No matter how unpopular they are with Panamanians, Balboa and the Canal Zone and the U.S. role there are vitally important to the immediate existence of Panama itself.

Every year $85 million flows into the Panamanian economy from the zone and its residents. There are many smaller—but real—benefits to the Panamanian.

What would happen if the present concept of the Canal Zone disappeared?

Banker Ruben D. Carles says: "There are great opportunities—and graver problems—in returning the canal to us. One would be finding the sources to replace the $70 million to $180 million income from the zone and their accompanying effect on employment, commerce, industry and balance of payments."

He advocates a wide range of U.S. compensations for rights over the canal, and he wants Panama to have use of Canal Zone port facilities. Panama City, the capital, has none.

He says the $1.9 million annuity the United States now pays Panama for the canal is a pittance sum.

Some Panamanians fear the United States will only pull out of Panama after it has developed a new canal elsewhere across the Central American isthmus, leaving Panama in effect with a big, empty ditch.

But many including Panamanian nationalists, believe the day is over when the United States could go into just any country and build canals.

PARIS (AP)—Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, NATO's supreme commander for Europe, left today for a short visit to Turkey and Greece.

PANAMA (AP)—An attempt to burn the Tivoli guest house in the Panama Canal Zone failed Monday.

The guest house, which is near the border of the zone, is a symbol of nationalist hatred because the 1903 Canal Zone treaty was signed there. It has been vacant since the violence on the Canal Zone border early this month.

MADRID, Spain (AP)—Gen. Francisco Franco has told Soviet Premier Khrushchev that total disarmament cannot bring peace unless the causes of war are eliminated.

Replying to Khrushchev's New Year greeting, Franco urged all who seek peace to root out social injustice, ignorance and misery.

TOKYO (AP)—Eight Japanese youths died during the night from gas poisoning at a hostel beside Lake Shirakaba, a resort 100 miles west of Tokyo.

The victims, ranging in age from 19 to 23, were found in their beds. A faulty oil stove was blamed.

A keelboat brought James L. Miller, Arkansas' first territorial governor, from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, to Arkansas Post on his initial trip to this section.

Highlights in History of Today

Today in History
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, Jan. 30, 1964. There are 336 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1799, Congress passed the Logan Act, forbidding a private citizen to undertake diplomatic negotiations. The act was named for George Logan, a physician and politician who, at his own expense, had tried to improve relations with France.

On this date: In 1647, King Charles I of England surrendered to Parliament and was beheaded two years later.

In 1835, the first attempt to assassinate a president of the United States was made against Andrew Jackson as he attended funeral services in Washington for a South Carolina congressman.

In 1862, the 32nd president, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, was born near Hyde Park, N.Y.

In 1948, the spiritual leader of Hindus in India, Mohandas K. Gandhi, was assassinated.

Ten years ago—Premier Fanfani and his Cabinet were ousted after losing a vote of confidence in the Italian Chamber of Deputies.

Five years ago—U.S. space experts expressed the belief that Russia could pinpoint cities in the United States with a ballistic missile fired from a distance of more than 5,000 miles.

One year ago—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan accused President Charles de Gaulle of trying to dominate Europe following France's killing outside when I went through the American wing.

When I emerged, she steered me back to the Egyptian area. This time she pawed me successfully to a glass case containing the remnants of a fellow wrapped in Tiesbes a long time ago. To an outsider he had an air of decrepitude.

"That's a mummy in there," said my daughter learnedly. "You know how long he has been in there? He was put in there before Jesus Christ was born and—her face wore a look of complete feminine triumph—"he never has got out."

"What do you think of that, Daddy?"

I thought it was a good time to go home. The way I figure culture, you can only take so much of it at a time—in our family.

The Way to Figure Culture Is You Can Take Only So Much of It at One Time

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—As culture comes to all mankind it has come to our family.

"You never take me to a museum," remarked our 10-year-old daughter, Tracy Ann, whose usual enthusiasms are ice skating and trying to unwind the teeth we pay her orthodontist to wire.

"Well, well," I said, stung to the backbone of parental pride. "What museum would you like to see? The Guggenheim?"

"Is that the one where you go up in an elevator and then unwind and unwind and unwind as you go downstairs?"

"Maybe."

"No, thanks."

"Well, how would you like to see the Metropolitan Museum of Art?"

"Is that where the mummy lives?"

"Well, yes, they do have a department of Egyptology there."

"That's the place, replied my daughter. "That's where the mummy lives."

We walked up the grand staircase of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

"I think the mummies are this way," said Tracy confidently. We went by an array of stone emplacements, dilapidated cat goddesses and leering amputees of lost splendor.

Then we got lost ourselves and wandered into the armor area where knights in steel beset horses also metal-bordered. Tracy enjoyed this form of humanitarianism.

"Did cats wear armor too then so dogs couldn't bite them?" she asked.

We went down and hit the snack place for a sandwich and a drink. Tracy insisted on waiting outside when I went through the American wing.

DOROTHY DIX

HUSBAND ON SPENDING SPREE

By Helen Worden Erskine

Dear Helen: Ever since my husband started making good money he's been spending it like a drunken sailor. We're far deeper in debt than when we had nothing.

While he's away at the office, I'm left on the firing line, fending off debt collectors and process servers.

I'm the easy-going kind of wife; never nag, won't fight and usually take life as it comes, but this pacifying creditors has me down. Loving my husband, I figure maybe I'd better go find a job and help him pay off the debts. But is bringing more money into the till the answer? Won't he just keep on squandering even more than our combined earnings?

His excuse for spending is that he loves me and the children, and wants us to have the best. But there's more to it than that. He's the big-hearted type—can't say no to anyone; brings home indigent friends and the like. We've got one here now. Seems to me the extra money this moocher costs should go toward paying our bills. What do you think?

Worried Wife

Dear Worried: That idea of finding a job is a good one. It could serve a four-fold purpose: jerk your husband back to reality, especially when the purpose of your going to work penetrates; help pay off these debts; impress the creditors of your honest intent and supply a real reason—if you need one—for getting rid of the moocher.

Once you land the job, take a pad and pencil and sit down with your husband, prepared to budget your combined weekly salaries. Apportion so much to each debtor, allowing enough extra to buy food and bare necessities. Make it a game with your husband. Keep score, mailing off each payment made. Before you know it, the happy day will come when you can write "Paid in full" across the entire list.

Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet, "Financial Trouble." Read it aloud to your husband.

Dear Helen: I'm a girl in my sub-teens but my parents won't let me select clothes for school wear. They think I choose to be sexy.

What can I do?—Kathy

Dear Kathy: As long as your parents foot the bills, you'll have to abide by their decision, since you like clothes, why not take a course in dress-making at school and work out some designs, with the help of your teacher, which will please your parents as well as you?

Dear Helen: I am 22 and employed in the same office with a man of 25 whom I greatly admire. We dated three times a week until a month ago when he said he would see me next February. I realize he is painting the new house his father and mother just bought. Also he sells cars and works as a cabinet maker in addition to holding down his regular job. Don't you think he could still find time to see me if he wanted to? He took another girl to the wedding of a mutual friend this weekend. My family and relatives think after he's finished painting the house I'll see more of him. Do you?

—Sweet Marie

Dear Sweet: If this busy bee wanted to see you, he would find the time regardless of house-painting or anything else. Stop playing eager beaver. Give him to understand that he's not the only prospect in your life. Date other boys. Have fun and he'll be camping on your doorstep.

Have you a problem? Perhaps Helen Worden Erskine can help you. Write her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Finley to Be Invited to Testify

By G. MILTON KELLY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate subcommittee announced today it will begin hearings Thursday on professional baseball's exemption from antitrust laws and the embattled Charles O. Finley will be invited to testify.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., disclosed plans for the antitrust subcommittee to look into the situation which puts baseball outside the antitrust requirements while leaving in professional football, basketball and hockey.

Hart said baseball Commissioner Ford Frick will be among the first day's witnesses.

Finley, who has been feuding with other American League owners over his efforts to move his Athletics out of Kansas City, will be invited to testify, Hart said.

So far, the senator said, Finley has not yet asked to be heard. But Hart said he hoped the subcommittee would get an early fill-in on Finley's situation.

In a well-publicized battle, the American League turned down Finley's attempt to move his team to Louisville, Ky.

Not giving up, he announced Monday he would try to shift the club to Oakland, Calif., again, though, the move would be subject to league approval.

Hart listed George Selkirk, general manager of the American League's tail-end Washington Senators, as the leadoff witness Thursday.

Hart announced in advance the inquiry would be a "low pressure" probe which could embrace, among other things, any complaints from chronic tail enders in the various professional sports leagues about the help or lack of it received from the established clubs to

Hart has introduced legislation which would place all four of the team sports under limited application of the antitrust laws. This is the scheduled main topic for the witnesses.

Make My Bed Soon

By Jack Webb

THE STORY: Still hurting from his injuries on the highway, Duffey hides in a Phoenix hotel room.

IX

I got out of the tub and began to towel myself dry. My shoulder and neck felt better. But they were limp, and loose, and sore, and I was dizzy with weakness from the heat of the tub. In a pair of clean shorts I lay down on the bed. I put the gun under my pillow, feeling the hard shape of it beneath my head. I wondered who I was fooling.

Well, the Jinx had given me a tip, and I had come to Phoenix. One part of the tip was dead. The other part had tried to kill me, would probably try again. All because I had hitchhiked my way into a stolen-car racket; all because I had paid the price; all because fate had given me the Jinx for a cellmate; Jinx, who had known too much and told me too little.

I dressed carefully. Before I left the room I looked in my wallet. And even in my condition it was a shock to learn I had lost between two and three hundred dollars. The boys in the back room I could thank for that. I added it to my debt against Solly.

I dug in my suitcase, finding the half-dozen pair of socks. In the blue ones were $500. I took four and left a hundred.

The fat man was in the lobby, sitting in a chair reading a paper. I walked over and stood before him. "I told you to get out," I said. "If you're still here when I get back I'll make sure that you do."

He stared at me and he hated me, but this wasn't a place he could do anything about it. We both knew it, and he was still in his chair when I went out the front door. I grabbed a cab and told the driver to take me to Adler's. We were turning the corner when the fat man came out of the hotel.

Wherever the fat man might have expected me to go, it wouldn't be Adler's Tower Central. I had a good time picking out my masquerade. The boots had square toes and a tall curving arch. Reluctantly passing over striped gambler's trousers, I settled for Levis and a fancy shirt with metal-edged buttons and double-breasted pockets. I kept the belt quiet with a three-inch buckle and blew $25 on a hat. They boxed the clothes I'd been wearing and promised to send them to the hotel. Up the block at a drug store I bought sunglasses.

Then I picked up a cab and rode out to Scottsville. The fare didn't cost me quite as much as the Stetson. It was late Saturday afternoon and the town was blooming with tourists, with drunks, with cowboys, with millionaires, school kids and cops, and with artists. Frazier could have found me with the needle in the haystack.

All I had to do was find Maggie and Herbert. They weren't in Lulu's the Blue Dog, or the Tony Pony. Gail was in the Pony, though, along with the rodeo crowd. There was no sign of Charlton or of Chet Covalt.

A broad-brimmed flat-topped hat was tilted back on her head. Her checkered shirt had been tailored for a girl type, and she must have gotten into her pants with a shoe-horn.

I bought a drink. When the bartender brought it, I asked, "Maggie and Herbert been in?" "Not yet," he said, and then, "There's something doing with the zoo crowd out in the valley. Some of them will be in here to eat."

I didn't know who the zoo crowd was, but it seemed to fit Herbert.

I picked up my drink and wandered over. "Honey," I said, "let's crash the zoo crowd."

Gail stared at me solemnly and then began to giggle. "Zoo crowd," she said, "you and me?"

"So it's a good idea."

"I know you?"

"You owe me a favor."

"So let's join the zoo crowd. Let's get the horses out of our hair and join the elephants."

"What you got against horses?"

"I just like elephants."

"I got a lot against horses," she told me. Then she put her finger to her lips. "Mustn't say that out loud," she warned me. "Mustn't ever say that out loud in here."

"So we pull a sneak," I suggested.

"I know the Winstons." She paused and thought about knowing the Winstons. "You for the zoo?"

"Absolutely."

"Know how we're going to keep 'em cool in the summer?"

"No."

"Frigerate their feet," she told me. "Polar bears, penguins it makes no difference; we frigerate the bottoms of their cages. Perfectly wonderful idea."

Gail reached over and raised my sunglasses. "You!" she exclaimed, and her eyes snapped into focus.

Bobcats 4th in District Standings

The Malvern Leopards suffered only their second loss in their last seventeen games (covering two seasons) in Div. 4AA basketball and the loss turned the conference race into almost a new beginning. The Smackover Buckaroos downed the previously undefeated Leopards 56-42.

In another upset the Crossett Eagles dumped the Buckaroos 61-58. Other results last week saw Camden move into title contention with a 64-42 win over Magnolia on Friday night and the Panthers downed Crossett 48-45 on Saturday night. Hope defeated Magnolia on a 77-69 score.

The conference struggle may clear up somewhat this week with Camden at Crossett on Friday night; Hope at Fairview on Friday night. The Saturday night slate sends Camden to Malvern in a show-down battle; Smackover invades Fairview; and Crossett journey to Hope.

The Leopards of Malvern won the 4AA round robin last year with a 11-1 mark. Their only loss last season was to Fairview. It now appears that the 4AA basketball picture has improved to the extent that on any given night any team, regardless of position in the standings, can defeat any of the other teams.

James Chancellor of Malvern continues to lead the individual scores in league play but Magnolia's Micky Christian moved from fifth place to second place just three points behind. Chancellor has 84 points, Christian 81. R. Tollett of Magnolia is third with 74 points, and Dan Jones of Hope has 71.

The winner of the round robin schedule will be host to the post season tournament.

The Standings:

Team	W	L
Malvern Leopards	4	1
Camden Panthers	3	1
Smackover Bucks	3	2
Hope Bobcats	2	2
Magnolia Panthers	2	4
Fairview Cardinals	1	3
Crossett Eagles	1	3

$100,000 Up for Patterson and Jones

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Doug Jones was just looking for a warmup fight when he signed to meet Boston brawler Tom McNeely. Now a $100,000 purse may be at stake for Jones in the Monday night 10-rounder at the New York Coliseum.

This development arose Tuesday when Jones' manager, Alex Koskowitz, said he received a cable from Swedish promoter Edwin Ahlquist asking if Jones would be interested in fighting former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson in Stockholm outdoors in May or June.

"Ahlquist told me the fight could draw from $450,000 to $550,000 outdoors," said the fighter-manager. "He said if we were interested he would call me Thursday or Friday. I told him we would like the match very much."

Patterson is very popular in Sweden. Ahlquist, long-time advisor of ex-heavyweight king Ingemar Johansson, promoted Patterson's fight with Italy's Sante Amonti in Stockholm last Jan. 6. Patterson stopped the Italian in the sixth round before a capacity indoor crowd of 11,700.

Jones, who lost a disputed 10-rounder to undefeated Cassius Clay in New York last March 13, is ranked second contender and Patterson is ranked eighth.

Twenty-five per cent of an outdoor sellout with Patterson could earn Jones about $100,000 the biggest payday of his career.

A loss to McNeely, an improved fighter, most likely would knock Jones out of the fight.

People Get With Winner Liston

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—

"Well, nobody can beat me so I guess the people decided to join me."

This was Sonny Liston's reaction when someone remarked at a news conference Tuesday that the sometimes surly heavyweight champion's popularity seemed to be on the rise.

The reporters wondered if it wasn't a case of a "new" Liston deciding to join the people. They had never seen him so jovial and perfectly at ease.

"Why so happy, Sonny?" he was asked. "I got Cassius Clay for Christmas," he laughed.

Liston started his on-site training for the Feb. 25 fight with Clay by staging a 10-round workout before a full house in the 300-seat Surfside Community Center.

Thinks Aggies Might Take SWC Crown

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

For the first time in 40 years the surprising Texas Aggies are in a good position to win the undisputed basketball championship of the Southwest Conference.

Despite a 73-65 defeat by independent Houston Tuesday night the Aggies are 3-0 in league competition, including a victory over defending champion Texas, and figure to go all the way in Shelby Metcalf's first year as head coach.

"Our foes took us too lightly the first half of the season said Metcalf. "It won't be that way the rest of the season. Everyone will be pointing for us now that we're on top and the team to beat."

Tuesday's defeat by the Cougars was the first game since Jan. 11 for the Aggies and it took some nifty long-range shooting by Chet Oliver, Jack Margenthaler and Benny Neumann to win for Houston.

The trio combined for 44 points as the Cougars won their eighth in a row before a delighted Houston turnout of 7,700. Sophomore John Beasley with 17 points and Lenox with 11 led the Aggies.

The game helped highlight another slim national program on the college hardwoods. Fifth-ranked Vanderbilt, the only team in The Associated Press Top Ten to see action, romped against Arkansas State 108-73.

Wisconsin beat Marquette 72-68. Providence whipped Santa Clara 82-71. Auburn nipped Florida State 63-59. Drake upended Iowa State 63-53. Xavier, Ohio, downed Canisius 104-84. George Washington drubbed Centenary 88-69. Arizona State defeated Los Angeles Loyola 82-64. Miami, Fla. rolled over Rollins 127-85 and Washington nipped Oregon 69-67 in two overtimes.

9th Winter Olympic Games Open

By TED SMITS
Associated Press Sports Editor

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)—The Russians crushed the United States' defending champions in hockey Wednesday 5-1 and got off to a smashing start in the ninth Winter Olympic Games.

Athletes from the Soviet Union are favored to dominate this international ice and snow spectacle, which was formally opened by Dr. Adolf Schaerf, the president of Austria, in a colorful ceremony.

Hockey teams of the United States and Russia faced off at the ice arena in the first competition shortly after the flame was put to the Olympic torch, and the Russians immediately took charge.

The 1,260 athletes from 35 nations paraded at the base of the spectacular Berg Isel ski jump and dipped the national colors as Paul Aste, Austrian bobsledder, took the Olympic oath of amateurism and sportsmanship on behalf of all competitors.

The torch that burns until the Games end Feb. 9 was lit by Josi Rieder, a former Austrian world ski champion.

The big Russian team is expected to dominate these Games just as it did those at Squaw Valley, California, four years ago when the Soviets won seven gold medals, five silver and nine bronze. Strong competition will come from Germany, Norway and Austria.

The United States, which won three firsts at Squaw Valley, is pinning most of its hopes on Jean Saubert, the sturdy Oregon girl who is among the world's best in the slalom and downhill ski races.

Hockey competition is already under way and tonight the first championship of the Games will be settled—the pairs figure skating.

Thursday there will be the men's 30 kilometer cross country race, women's 500 meter speedskating, and the men's downhill ski race.

The opening ceremonies followed rigid Olympic protocol.

On hand were Dr. Adolf Schaerf, president of Austria; Avery Brundage of Chicago, president of the International Olympic Committee; Prof. Friedl Wolfgang, secretary general of these Games, and international sports officials.

Flags of the 35 competing nations were run up as the Austrian national anthem was played. The white Olympic flag with the five interlocking circles that flew at Squaw Valley was ceremoniously brought in and presented to Dr. Alois Lugger, mayor of Innsbruck.

Only on the jagged peaks of the Tyrolean Alps that ring Innsbruck can snow be seen in abundance, but enough has been brought in by Austrian soldiers to provide an adequate surface for the ski and jumping events on the lower slopes.

Harassed Austrian officials fear that if the white stuff does start falling now it will only complicate matters.

Never before has tragedy struck the Games so early and so hard. Ross Milne, Australian skier, and Kazimierz Kay-Skrzypski, a Pole who became a British citizen and took up bobsledding, were both killed in pre-Olympic training here. A dozen or so others have been injured, some seriously.

Many fear that the hard-packed and icy snow brought here for the Games will produce further mishaps.

The opening day's program was limited to give most competitors a chance to participate in the traditional inaugural ceremonies but it was a program likely to please the fans.

The hockey schedule started off with what could be the most crucial match of the games. The United States, surprise winner of the 1960 title, was pitted against powerful Russia, the current world champions. They met at 7:30 a.m. EST.

In two other matches in the round robin championship meet Czechoslovakia faced Germany and Canada confronted Switzerland.

The first gold medal of the games was at stake in the pairs figure skating tonight, and world champions Marika Killius and Hans-Juergen Baumeier of Germany were the favorites.

But they faced a strong challenge from Russia's Ludmila Belousova and Oleg Protopopov and Canada's Debbi Wilkes and Guy Revell.

The draw hurt the favored Germans.

They drew the second skating position in the field of 17. The Soviet champions skate ninth and the Canadians tenth.

Since there is no compulsory portion to pair skating, the panel of nine judges must rank the couples entirely on the basis of their five-minute free skating son with an additional payment for the league's All-Star game.

The new contract with NBC Network covers the League's championship playoff game or the All-Star game.

The ABC network has a hold-over contract for 1964 which will pay the $2.35 million for the sea-

OLYMPIC HOPE—Jean Saubert swerves downhill to win a special slalom of the Third International Women's Cup in Oberstaufen, Germany. Palm Springs Meet Brings 500 Golfers

By CHARLES MAHER

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Defending champion Jack Nicklaus and more than 500 other golfers were here today to start the tournament that doesn't know when to quit.

It's the Palm Springs Classic, an event whose format suggests it was conceived by the same guy who originated the trans-Pacific underwater bicycle race.

Actually, it's a very ordinary golf tournament, except that it runs five days and is the only 90-hole event on the PGA tour—and that it is played on four different courses simultaneously—and that it is really 18 tournaments in one.

The nearly 11 dozen professionals entered will compete for about $100,000 in prize money. Of this, $50,000 will be distributed Sunday to leading scorers in the 90-hole tournament proper. The winner will get $7,500.

The rest will be divided up a little at a time, during the 17-part pro-amateur event that runs through Saturday.

In addition, an insurance company promises a $10,000 bonus to any pro who makes a hole-in-one. Tournament sponsors offered a $50,000 hole-in-one prize in previous years. But they had to take out a $50,000 insurance policy to cover themselves and, after a few payoffs, the premium got so high they decided to drop the gimmick.

This is the fifth PGA tournament of the year and winners of three of the previous four are here. They are Art Wall Jr., who won the San Diego open; Tony Lema, winner of the Bing Crosby tournament, and Chi Chi Rodriguez, who won the Lucky Invitational at San Francisco, defeating Don January in a playoff Monday.

Arnold Palmer, who won the first Palm Springs Classic in 1960 and repeated in 1962, is back again. So is Billy Maxwell, the 1961 winner.

Last year, the event went 108 holes, Nicklaus defeating Gary Player in an 18-hole playoff. If there is a tie at the end of 90 holes this year, there will be a sudden death playoff the same day.

The Fotheringills skate 11th, the Josephs 17th and last and the Kauffmans fifth.

Judianne and Jerry Fotheringill of Tacoma, Wash., and Vivian and Ronald Joseph of Highland Park, Ill. seem the best bets. They have been 1-2 in the past two U.S. championships, and placed 7-8 last year in the world meet. The third U.S. entry is Cynthia and Ronald Kauffman of Seattle.

West's Broke Thumb Hurts the Lakers

Jerry West's broken thumb may turn out to be Los Angeles' toughest handicap since Sandy Koufax wrecked his index finger two years ago.

When the Dodgers' ace southpaw injured the pitching-hand finger in 1962, LA blew a baseball pennant. Now the Lakers of the National Basketball Association are in danger of losing their Western Division title grip because of West's damaged digit.

The Lakers missed West's 29.6 scoring average Tuesday night when Detroit's last-place Pistons cut them down, 93-92. With West on the firing line, Los Angeles had been scoring 111.3 points a game. With West out—result of a collision with Wilt Chamberlain Sunday—the Lakers were puncheonless, despite knee-sore Elgin Baylor's 25 points.

The defeat sliced the Lakers' Western lead to two games over idle St. Louis and 2½ over San Francisco, which walloped Philadelphia 139-117 behind Chamberlain's 59-point binge.

New York, the NBA's Eastern tailenders, surprised league-leading Boston 133-127 in the only other game.

Willie Jones dropped in two baskets and a free throw in the last 52 seconds as the Pistons snapped a five-game losing string. Jones' clutch shooting came after Detroit squandered a 14-point lead in the final quarter. Newcomer Reggie Harding and veteran Bailey Howell shared scoring honors for the Pistons with 16 points apiece.

Chamberlain's scoring harvest matched his single-game high this season and overshadowed a 41-point performance by Philadelphia's Hal Greer.

The Warriors reeled off 18 straight points early in the third quarter to overcome a Philly lead. After the clubs battled through nine ties, Tom Meschery put San Francisco on top to stay with a jump shot from the corner. Meschery finished with 29 points.

The Knicks and Celtics combined for 90 points in the fourth quarter, a Madison Square Garden pro record. Boston's 48 points in the period, also a Garden mark, almost wiped out a 16-point New York margin.

Bob Boozbath 23, Bill McGill 27, and John Egan 24, paced the Knicks to their first victory in five games and second over the NBA champs in eight meetings.
